One of our core recruiting efforts includes recruiting and training law students who care deeply about making a difference in the world.

We take culture seriously. We're not just a Kansas City law firm; we're a family. And we believe in supporting our family both in and outside of the office.

Our recruiting efforts are focused on professionals who are driven to succeed.

Clients expect a lot out of their law firm. Attorneys and other legal professionals must be able to offer reliable and creative solutions to their clients' legal problems and questions. But to be truly successful, attorneys and other legal professionals must also be aware of the bigger picture, understand how their recommendations will fit into that bigger picture, and also be competent in making business recommendations outside of the legal recommendation itself. That's tough. And professionals who can perform all of those tasks will have many opportunities in front of them. If that description fits you and if you are driven to use those capabilities in a way to support clients and the community, we want to talk to you!
