

Construction Law

The Seigfreid Bingham Construction Law Group is uniquely suited to represent all players in the construction industry including owners, developers, designers, contractors, and lenders.

Based in Kansas City, our construction attorneys know how critical it is to maintain control over your business' risk exposure while providing cost-effective legal services. We represent a broad cross-section of construction clients in providing contract negotiation, drafting services, dispute avoidance, and dispute resolution services. The firm is uniquely experienced in structuring projects early in the project definition process. Our project approach will maximize your strengths and tailor your vision.

We know that fees are important to your business model and the importance that attorneys adhere to the budget provided. We have an unmatched level of competence and experience in construction law. Understanding this full spectrum of what you do every day allows our attorneys to help you accomplish more. We know how to communicate with you on complicated construction matters and help make strategic legal and business decisions. This knowledge of your industry is also essential in dealing with governmental entities in connection with your project.

Our construction attorneys have extensive experience in handling disputes when they arise. When litigation or arbitration is necessary, we will work with you to develop a strategy that meets your goals and objectives, including a timeline and budget. In addition to aggressively protecting and pursuing your interests, we will manage the case consistently with your business plan and goals.
