

Environmental Law

An environmental law attorney can help you maintain compliance.

Whether you need representation defending an environmental claim or need to create a program to achieve environmental compliance, the experienced environmental attorneys at Seigfreid Bingham can help. Our attorneys work to find practical and manageable solutions to complex difficulties. We have represented a wide range of clients ranging from small businesses to municipalities to multi-national corporations.

When you need help defending environmental and toxic claims, we can assist.

We represent companies in both property contamination and personal injury cases and have successfully negotiated with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and several state agencies including the Kansas Department of Health and Environment and the Missouri Department of Natural Resources. We have also successfully prosecuted and defended private-party claims.

Our environmental lawyers can create effective waste management solutions for your business.

Regardless if you are a property owner, property purchaser, or a hazardous waste generator, we can aid in efforts to evaluate and comply with the various environmental statutes and regulations. Our environmental law attorneys can put together a team of consultants and experts to help you achieve environmental compliance through cost-effective management of waste-related issues.
