John Fuchs Presents on AI in Commercial Real Estate at CREW KC's Event

Seigfreid Bingham attorney John Fuchs was the featured speaker for CREW Kansas City's May (2026) Professional Development program, which took place at the firm's office.

John presented "AI in CRE: What's Actually Being Used Today," a practical exploration of how artificial intelligence is currently being deployed across the commercial real estate lifecycle.

His session highlighted:

- How AI is supporting underwriting, design coordination, construction planning, and operations
- Real-world examples of successful implementation—and where today's tools still fall short
- Key risks, pitfalls, and compliance considerations for CRE professionals
- Strategies for integrating AI into everyday workflows

This speaking engagement underscores John's leadership at the intersection of technology, risk management, and commercial real estate, where his legal insight continues to help clients navigate rapid industry transformation.
