Katie Zogleman Appointed to KU Law School's Board of Governors

Seigfreid Bingham attorney Katie Zogleman was recently appointed to the University of Kansas (KU) School of Law's Board of Governors. Katie is one of 11 KU Law alumni to join the Board, serving a term that will run through 2029.

The Board of Governors at the University of Kansas School of Law is committed to promoting the school's ongoing development, supporting the school's mission, promoting alumni engagement, and contributing to the continued advancement of legal education and growth at KU.

Katie's appointment reflects her ongoing commitment to the KU Law community. She will join fellow alumni and board members in providing guidance and leadership to support the school and its students.

To learn more, please click here.