Seigfreid Bingham Welcomed Three Associate Attorneys in 2022

Seigfreid Bingham is pleased to highlight the firm's newest associate attorneys, Katie A. Conklin, Nida S. Rais, and Taylor P. Thompson ("Tate").

Katie Conklin

Katie is a member of the firm's Litigation practice group. Her practice focuses on complex litigation involving the health care and restaurant/hospitality industries. She also works on employment law and general business law matters. Previously, Katie was a summer associate at the firm and worked in Washington, D.C., at the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Nida Rais

Nida's practice focuses on a variety of corporate and transactional services, including commercial contracts and mergers and acquisitions, as well as data, privacy, and technology matters. Prior to joining the firm, Nida was in private practice and worked on a diverse set of strategic transactions.

Tate Thompson

Tate is a corporate associate and assists clients with transactional matters and day-to-day business activities. He handles mergers and acquisitions and real estate dealings. Tate also works on sports and entertainment and other general corporate matters.
