

Restaurant and Hospitality

Regardless if you are a fast-growing franchise or a small local restaurant, you need a team of restaurant and hospitality attorneys that understands your business and the industry as a whole.

While many corporate law firms dabble in the restaurant industry, our Kansas City-based Restaurant and Hospitality Group maintains a national reputation for helping restaurants and other establishments operate profitably. We can do this because our restaurant and hospitality attorneys offer more than just legal advice; they provide strategic business advice based on years of experience working inside and outside of restaurant and hospitality businesses.

We've spent years working within nationally-known restaurant chains providing internal counsel on corporate transactions, daily operations, and sales and mergers of hundreds of restaurants and franchises. Further, the leader of our restaurant and hospitality team was a founder of a sports bar and grill that now has several locations throughout the Midwest.

As a result of our real world experience, we understand you, your business, and your industry. You need experienced attorneys, responsive services, and reasonable fees. Our restaurant and hospitality attorneys are ready to deliver on all of those needs.

As a leader of a restaurant or hospitality business, you need more than just a corporate attorney; you require a lawyer who has a proven background in helping industry leaders run profitable businesses. You deserve restaurant and hospitality attorneys who are responsive and charge reasonable fees. We serve many businesses like yours on a daily basis.

If you are a small local restaurant, a franchisee or franchisor, or the operator of a national chain, the attorneys of Seigfreid Bingham would like to help you today.
